Wild Rice: watnəʔ·kwas – Oneida, manoomin – Ojibwe, pawahan – Menominee

When you have time, make wild rice in large quantities. Then freeze in one to two-cup sized portions in zip top freezer bags. When you have one of those days when making dinner seems like a Herculean task…try this quick and easy dinner:

Thaw one or two of your portions of frozen rice in the microwave. When it is thawed, place it on the stove top in a pan, add one can of black beans (drained and rinsed), a little cumin (or other favorite seasoning). Stir to combine and heat through. Serve and Enjoy!

Quick Wild Rice Stuffing – Add ½ cup cooked wild rice to each 2 cups of your favorite bread stuffing

Wild Rice and Cranberry Casserole

Ingredients:
- ½ cup onion, diced
- ½ cup celery, diced
- ½ cup fresh mushrooms
- 2 T olive or canola oil
- 3 cups cooked wild rice
- 1 cup low sodium chicken broth
- 1 teaspoon garlic powder
- ½ teaspoon ginger (optional)
- ½ cup dried cranberries
- ½ cup slivered almonds (optional)

Add onion, celery and mushrooms to oil in a large pan over medium heat. Cook until soft, 7-10 minutes. Add veggie mixture with remaining ingredients (wild rice through almonds) in a large bowl. Mix well and transfer to a greased oven-safe casserole dish. Bake at 350° for 30 minutes.
Did you know?

Whole heads of garlic stored in an airtight container of uncooked wild rice will stay fresh for months (they won’t send up that green sprout)!

Wild and White Rice Blends

To blend wild rice and white rice, cook separately then blend. These two rices should not be cooked together as white rice takes about 15 minutes to cook while the wild rice takes between 45-60 minutes.

Check rice about halfway through the cooking time, and then every ten minutes. Wild rice is done when most of the kernels are split open to reveal the white inside, and a few have “butterflied”, or opened all the way and are peeled back. The rice will be tender yet still a bit chewy.

<td>Store in paper bags with holes poked in it (round up those kids again!). Store in a cool, dry, ventilated place. Do NOT store with potatoes as this will cause rot. Also, don’t put too many onions in each bag, they need air circulation.</td>
<td>Take a washed pair of used or new pantyhose and place the onions into the feet. Next, tie a knot in the pantyhose above each whole onion. Repeat this process until both legs are full or you have inserted all the onions. Hang the pantyhose in a cool, dry and dark place, such as a pantry, closet or cellar. When you need an onion, simply cut the hose right below the end knot.</td>
